

Introduction of Stackoverflow style discussion board on CoPs

Definition CoPs

“a group of people who share a craft and/or a profession. The group can evolve naturally because of the members' common interest in a particular domain or area, or it can be created specifically with the goal of gaining knowledge related to their field. It is through the process of sharing information and experiences with the group that the members learn from each other, and have an opportunity to develop themselves personally and professionally” (Lave & Wenger 1991).

COPs Implementation using social Q&A system.
Hide Details
Sent Mail 1

Salam Puan,

Thinking of the objectives of COP inorder to simplify exchanging question and information using email and forum, i'm thinking of implementing a social Q&A using stackoverflow styled. It is the new way to exchanging information with implementation of social, rating and dynamic element in the process. The designed with "Social software for anti-social" mindset. Simple, easy to use and straight to the points. The case study is a bit technical but in can be customised to suit the engineering and simpler/interactive knowledge sharing medium.

site: <http://stackoverflow.com/search?q=knowledge> brief explanation: <http://stackoverflow.com/about> slides: <http://www.slideshare.net/codinghorror/webstock-2010-stack-overflow-building-social-software-for-the-antisocial>

Do you think it can relate or inline with COPs initiatives?

Best Regards
Haris Subandie Md. Suhaimin

How do I strip quotes from an input box using PHP

I have this:

```
<input name="title" type="text" class="inputMedium" value="" . $inputData['title']

I want to strip quotes from user input so that if someone enters something like: "This is my title" it wont mess up my code.

I tried this and it's not working: `$inputData['title'] = str_replace('"', "", $_POST['title']);`

If I understand the question correctly, you want to remove " from `$inputData['title']` so your HTML code is not messed up ?

If so, the "right" solution is not to remove double-quotes, but to escape them before doing the actual output.

User input should be run through `htmlspecialchars()` to be used in this sort of case.

Because the community is engaging, gives you new and different problems to solve, your help is appreciated and no one can force you to do something that you don't want to (as long as you don't want to troll or set thing on fire) and you don't have the stress of having to answer correctly or you'll lose your food (being fired). Lack of having to answer to a clueless PHB is just a plus.

In short: You are here for intellectual leisure/engagement/fun, you are at work to get money so you can eat every day and sleep comfortably (consumerism aside).

Usability testing techniques developed over the past 25 years for Work no longer apply for work.

We shouldn't be asking, "Can you complete the task?" but rather "Are you motivated to do it in the first place?"
